Higher education has recorded strong growth in East Africa in recent years due to increased demand. The use of websites, subscribing to academic journals, use of intranet, social media and other e-learning tools have revolutionised the academic sector in East Africa.

Market Overview

Altogether, there are about 100 universities in East Africa, both public and private, with Kenya hosting the highest number, 40.

With local Kenyan universities not being able to offer enough places for students, more students are looking into opportunities to study overseas as they also wish to improve their career prospects in the labour market after graduation.

According to University World News, 57% of 1,044 Kenyan students polled in the recent survey said that they would prefer to study in a foreign university than a local one. The number of Kenyans issued with student visas has been on the rise in recent years according to government statistics.

An increase in Kenyan schools offering A-Levels and International Baccalaureate naturally increased the number of students willing to study abroad. Those ones who obtained the Kenya Certificate of Secondary Education (KCSE) can still apply to foreign universities but most of such students choose to go for Access Courses abroad.

In the past decade Tanzania's public universities have witnessed rapid growth in enrolment. There are nearly 30 public and private universities in Tanzania. Demand for higher education is large with an estimated student population of 15,000.

According to a recent report from the Tanzania Education Sector Analysis, emphasis has been put on higher education, to adequately meet the growing demand from secondary school leavers and produce skills relevant to current and future economic growth. University enrolment has grown at an average annual rate of 30% over 2005-09.

Fair Outline

Main areas are undergraduate courses and postgraduate courses with a visible increase in interest for professional qualifications. Many foreign universities attract Kenyan students for access and foundation courses in marketing, business, management and IT.

The main subject areas are: business and finance, medicine and related sciences, IT, engineering, hotel management, humanities, law, science, MBA, and distant learning.

This year, ISFA are also donating to the Mara Meru Cheetah project, if you would like to donate 5 Euros from your booking towards the charity, please mention this in the comments section of your invoice.

The Job, Training and Education Fair Austria

Information

The Job, Training and Education Fair lasts four days and has about 350 exhibitors including the exhibitors from abroad. The organizers of Austria's largest education fair are the Federal Ministry of Education, Science and Research and the Public Employment Service Austria.

It first took place in 1986 as a study and career information fair in Vienna's city hall.

Thereafter, the former Vienna Messepalast served as a venue for some time. In 1996, the fair then moved to the Wiener Stadthalle.

The education fair also changed with the education landscape. In recent years, for example, the higher education system throughout Europe has been converted to the Bologna structure. In Austria, the Universities of Applied Sciences established themselves alongside universities. And the number of study programmes and locations has increased. The choice of study and training opportunities is very diverse and there is a need for expert advice and support. The exhibition strives to match the latest trends in the educational and professional world in order to appeal and support visitors with its comprehensive information offer.

The exhibitors include universities, colleges, academies, private education providers, language schools, interest groups, and companies that provide information on jobs and in-company training programmes.

The exhibition is aimed at high school graduates, students and young professionals as well as parents, teachers, university graduates, professionals and people interested in further education.
